

Your people work hard. Your money should too.

When it comes to surplus money on your balance sheet, is cash always king?

Holding your company's money on deposit may make sense to meet short term cash flow requirements, however, holding all your surplus cash in deposit can be inefficient and may have a negative impact on your balance sheet as:

Deposit interest rates at historic lows^{1, 2}

With a number of banks now offering negative interest rates and the highest five year fixed term deposit is 0.1% AER¹.

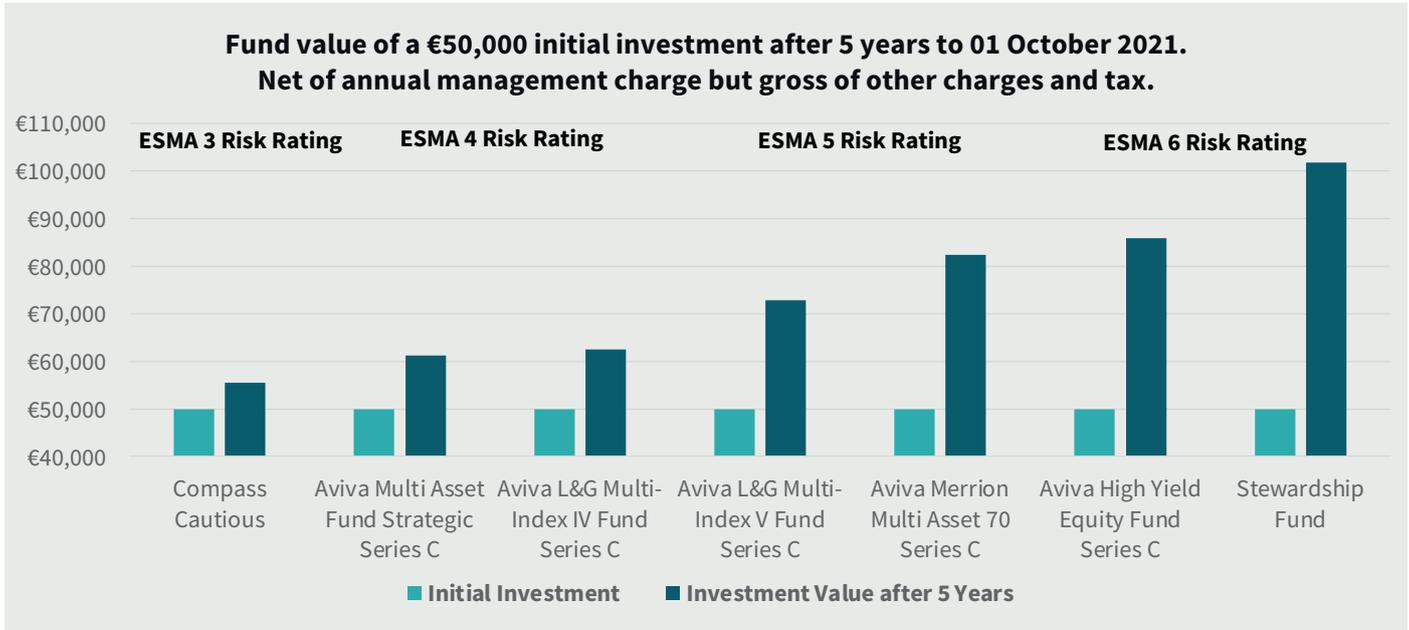

Inflation is eating into your money on deposit

Ireland's annual inflation rate increased to 3.75% in September 2021³. With interest rates at historic lows, returns on deposit accounts are not keeping pace with inflation eating into the real value of your balance sheet.

When you invest in a deposit account you may qualify for compensation under the Deposit Guarantee Scheme if the bank is unable to meet their obligations to you. A life assurance levy of 1% is chargeable on all premiums invested through Aviva Corporate Savings Plan and Investment Bond. 3. Source: inflation.eu. Based on the Irish consumer price index.

Is there a better solution?

If you want to give your company’s surplus money the potential to work harder than deposits, the potential to outperform inflation, now may be the right time to speak with your Financial Broker about Corporate Investment Bond from Aviva. When you do this, your company’s surplus money will be invested in a fund to match the risk profile that you are comfortable to take, meaning it will have good potential for growth, especially over the long-term. Aviva offers you access to a broad range of funds across the risk spectrum, asset classes and from a range of leading global fund managers. The following chart show how lump sum investors in some of Aviva’s more popular funds have posted strong returns over a five year period.
